ECONOMIC PLAN FOR BRITAIN

House Of Commons 'Announcement

London, July 3. Britain's Labour government is going to launch a three-year or five-year plan to get the country through its postwar economic crisis, Deputy Prime · Minister Herbert Morrison announced on Wednesday.

Members of a planning board to draft the long term economic programme will be named early next week, Mr Morrison told a news conference adding "there is not the slightest need for panie talking or thinking. There is a good hope that we shall come through."

Morrison's announcement, as well as his words of reassurance, came as Conservative opponents of the government were crying wee over the disclosure earlier in the week that imports must be cut, with a resultant increase in "austerity."

 The announcement, obviously plan-'ned some time ago, also followed observations by Tass, the Soviet News Agency to the effect that nelther Britain nor France had a work-

Soviet Threat Brings Angry Bevin Retort

Paris, July 2. Russia flatly broke with Britain and France tonight over the Marshall Plan for Europe and the Western powers announced that they would go ahead alone, despite Soviet warnings that this would split Europe.

When the Soviet Foreign Minister, Vyacheslav Molotov, rejected the "last chance" French compromise in the conference on Europe recovery, conference sources said the British Foreign Secretary, Ernest Bevin, flushed and angry, rose and looked at Mr Molotov fiercely.

"I regret that Mr Molotov threatened that if we continued this beneficent work we must face grave consequences," Mr Bevin said. "Well, my country has faced grave consequences and threats before, but that is not the sort of prospect which will deter us from doing what we consider our duty. Landsle which is to be submitted this afternoon, it will not be because they are out of sympathy with the general Tenor of the resolution, but because it bears the stamp of a belated afterthought. The motion advocates that Government should regard the solution of the housing question as one of the utmost urgency, and therefore, Governmeni snowa, wunoutidelay, pian and vigorously pursue a policy of rapid and extensive building. both domestic and office, for its own use, and in addition to fostering, and if necessary financing, building schemes for civilian use, should actively encourage private building to the ulmost extent possible..... This is not only familiar; it sounds like an echo of newspaper editorials which first played the some theme a year ago. It has taken our Unofficial Members a considerable time to fold serious issue with Government over a subject that has long been shrick-V ing for bold declarations and a determined policy. An arresting feature of Mr Landalo's motion is: that it suggests private enterprice will really get started on building houses if Government is prepared to "modify lis present unfair and repressive policy in regard to the renewal of 75years Crown Leases." Can that really be so? Up to this moment the wall of the private builder has been that high cost material and labour are the two principal factors preventing large-scale construction or rebuilding. Now comes the hint that the good intentions of property owners are being frustrated by a repressive policy regarding renewal of Crown Leases. The public will be interested to learn how this theme is developed in Legislative Counoll; equally will it be keen to ponder Government's reply. It is conceivable that a link exists. between the housing problem and the renewal of Crown Leases, but, without knowing the arguments to be adduced it is difficult to believe that solution of one is elther fundamentally or inextricably bound up with the other. A deliberate confusion or issues cannot be tolerated By all means insist that Government

A front and rear view of some women is a shock; from the Front they are pretty and attractive but, ugh, from the Back! Hunched shoulders, ill-fitting conf collars, wisps of hair hanging down, necklace clasps broken, or "mended" with a safety pin. Bits of caked makeup behind the ears (yes, really, and nice ladies, tool), torn and "draggy" vells. Right here let me say, don't wear a vell unless it is erisp and dresh!

BID TO SMASH MUSIC CARTEL

The U.S. Department of Justice has charged the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers - James C. Petrillo's union, which controls virtually all music in the United States-with engaging in an international cactel to deprive domestic and foreign music lovers of music.

ASCAP and 25 co-defendants were named in a civil suit filed by the Attorney General, Mr Tom. Clark to be located in Australia, several European and Latin American countries and Canada.

The Department of Justice charged that ASCAP and its societies monopolise the circulation of world music through an organisation known as La Confederation Internationale des Societies de Compositeurs, which has headquarters in Paris. It charged that thousands of United States musical outlets were prevented from getting music from abroad except through ASCAP, and United States musicians not members of ASCAP were prevented from getting their music played abroad,

The charge said ASCAP received US$11,000,000 last year in licensing music users in the United States. -United Press.

PALESTINE STRONG ARM SQUADS

Jerusalem, July 2. A secret "strong arm" squad of the Palestine police, whose existence was disclosed with the arrest of Major Roy Farran a month ago, has virtually been broken up, reliable private sources within the police disclosed today.

Farran, British Army war hero and reputed squad leader in the group, was picked up in Syria and brought back to Palestine and charged with the "wilful murder" of Alexander Rubowitz, claimed by the Stern Gang as a member. He is in army custody at Sarafand Camp awaiting court martial.

Though both the milliary and civil nuthorities have given out little, information, the case has brought to light the existence of an unorthodox group of war-seasoned army officers lent to the police to use their Commando experience against the Storn Gang and Irgun Zval Leumi, Jewish underground extremist organisations.

The Communists are expected Twelve-men squads, usually in civilian clothes and driving civilian cars, were formed to prowl Jewish quanters outside the security zone of Terusalem and Haifa as well as In the all-Jewish city of Telaviv. what relieved by the return to work
